How we work

Working group members are selected from EONS members who put themselves forward for working in the group when opportunities arise. Each working group is managed by an EONS Board Member (the Chair of the Working Group) and a Co-Chair who is selected from the group. Working group members are expected to remain for a minimum of two years and may be re-elected to the group three times in a row. After six years in one group, that member may not be re-elected but may move to a different working group if there is an opportunity to do so, when her/his terms start again. The working group chairs will after the end of a members term decide with member if wishing to prolong up until a maximum of six years.

In exceptional situations, to ensure the sustainability of a working group, the working group chairs can propose extension of a working group members term by up to one term (2 years). The working group chairs must bring this proposal to the board for approval.

Working groups will review membership once approval is sought and terms of reference of the group each year.
