

Are you seeking for professional and career growth opportunities?

Find out some great resources to accelerate!

Dear Young and Early Career Cancer Nurses, welcome to the May ECN blog. This month we share various opportunities within EONS, if you are interested in advancing in your career and looking for opportunities to grow as a professional.

Opportunities for progression are important for so many reasons, some of them are summarized below:

- ⇒ They improve your sense of well-being, self-esteem and self-confidence by actively working toward goals and expanding your abilities. In that way you grow as an individual and professional. Additionally, when you try new experiences is a great way to boost your self-confidence.
- ⇒ They increase your work performance by having a wider set of skills that boost your productivity and lower your turnover rate.
- ⇒ They lower your feeling of stress and anxiety because when you have room to grow, you no longer need to worry about barriers in your career.
- ⇒ They increase your job satisfaction. When you can progress in your career, you tend to feel better, and this can help you continue to pursue the next step in your career.

EONS17: “40 Years of European Cancer Nursing – Shaping the Future of Healthcare”, 14-16 September 2024 in Barcelona

Personal and professional growth come to those who are stepping outside of their comfort zone and actively participating in new challenges. You, your nursing colleagues and your patients can all benefit from you attending and contributing at one of the most influential and outstanding conferences. Here are some ways how:

1. Networking: Connecting with others who have experienced similar challenges and /or are experts in cancer care will provide you with latest evidence in the field, new ways of working, different techniques and tips that you can translate into your own practice. Moreover, expanding your networks will greatly benefit you when you are willing promote your work / project or to seek for collaborations.
2. Continuing professional development: International conferences act as platforms for educational opportunities.
3. Position yourself as an expert: Your participation demonstrates your commitment to advancing standards of education, research and practice, so will be reinforcing your status as an expert.
4. Avoid burnout: Our profession can be stressful and highly pressurised and it is important to take time away from the work setting to reflect on what you do and how you can improve. Your attendance at a conference provides an ideal opportunity to achieve this, whilst also having some time for relaxation with peers and new acquaintances.

The next EONS conference will take place in Barcelona in September this year and will be EONS 40th anniversary year, so you can look forward to a bumper event, featuring the usual high quality sessions and speakers, plus some great celebrations to mark this important moment in the history of EONS.

Deadline for submitting your abstract is 7 May, 2024. In addition a special registration fee for EONS Early Career Nurse (age 35 or younger) at 101€ is available.
